Ensuring the Future of The Blank's Young Playwrights Festival

YPFuture is a member community passionate about investing in the future of theatre. Our mission is to establish and grow a robust, sustainable, and supportive community whose contributions will ensure the future of The Blank Theatre's Young Playwrights Festival.

We are proud of the last 26 years. We have produced 320 plays by young writers ages 9-19 selected from over 5,000 nationwide submissions. Nowhere else in the world can young playwrights see their visions come to life on stage in professional productions with caring and capable mentoring to help them develop their craft and themselves.

YPF alumni like Tony Award-winner Stephen Karam and Steinberg Award-winner Lauren Yee, have made major marks in theater. Others like Austin Winsberg, creator of NBC's new Zoey's Extraordinary Playlist, and Kit Steinkellner, creator of Facebook Watch's series Sorry For Your Loss, have launched incredible careers in film, television, media, and music.

YPF alums use what they learn in the Festival to excel in the arts, business, education, media, non-profits, and public service.

No matter their path, YPF has impacted the trajectory of hundreds of young people who benefitted from their stories being told with professionalism and enthusiasm.

Now, we ask you to be an integral part of our continued innovation, collaboration, and artistic efforts.

Our Vision

To create a cohesive, focused network which can help us sustain and expand the good work we have begun. We want the Festival to flourish and to offer financial support to winners to allow them to participate in the rehearsal and performance process.

We also want to expand the Festival's reach to include local/regional competitions, international submissions, educational and mentoring outreach, and alumni and community collaboration to help spread the word about the Young Playwrights Festival to reach a wider audience and inspire future playwrights.
